From northern Mexico we learn, by way of New Orteans, that the northern States still adhere to the constitutional party. A body of troops, under the command of Colonel Aramberri, departed from Monterey on the 12th of April to quell certain disturbances in Cerro Gordo. Colonel A bails from Zacatecas, and he asserts that that State is in close union with the northern frontier. The siege of Tampico was progressing, and it was believed that the place would soon be in the possession of General Garza. Three assessins, it is stated, had been despatched for the purpose of assessinating Vidaurri, Garza, and Colonel Zayas, but they were arrested, confessed their mission, and two of them have been executed. The third has been remitted to Monterey for final.

The third has been remitted to Monterey for t hal.

[From the New Orleans Picayune.]

The condition of affairs in Mexico. as would appear from the late advices which we publish in another column, is going on from bad to worse daffy. Recent events on the line of operations between Vera Crus and the city of Mexico would seem to indicate the triumph of the reactionist party, at an early day, over the constitutional defenders of the former city; but yet such an event, though probable, is by no means certain. Cov. Zamorra and General La Llave are both there, and during the late conflicts have shown themselves to be men of no uncommon energy of purpose and ability. It may be that they may not be able to turn the tide of defection that is flowing around them, but they hope to do so, and are striving for that end. Some 1,200 men from Oajaca were on their way to Vera Cruz to reinforce that garrison, and were expected to reach there within two or three days, when the Tennessee left. These may enable the constitutionalist leaders to hold in check the elements of treason that exist within the walls of Vera Cruz, and there is no likelihood that the forces from the colder regions will descend to the fewer region to attack the city.

We learn from parties who have recently returned from Mexico that the government in possession of the capital has not only not been able to constitute a full cabinet, no man being found to fill the Treasury Department, but it has not been equal to the arrangement of a policy for the reconstruction of the republic. Bosdes this it is already exhausting the resources it received from the clergy on its advent to power, and unless Vora Cruz falls it sees no hope of life. The defence of that city, therefore, is a question of the highest moment both to the constitution alists and to the church party now ruling in the capital. A sturdy resistance for a few weeks may produce a great change in the relative position of the parties there. Should Vera Cruz fall, the church party count of government other than look to the advent of Osollos to power, supported, perhaps, by the liberals.

The only hope of the Mexican liberals at this time lies in Zamorra and La Llave, of Vera Cruz; Garzs, of Tamaulipas; and Vidaurri, of Nuevo Leon. These have all shown themselves staunch defenders of liberal principles, and, whatever may betide them now, they are sure to triumph at no distant day. The country is with them, and the form of government they support is the only possible one for the Mexican republic.

In the defence of the State of Vera Cruz, Governor Zamorra and General LaLlave have displayed eminent abilities and a resolution that does them high honor. Civilities and a resolution that does them high honor. Civilities and a resolution that does them high honor. Civilities and a resolution that does them high honor. Civilities themselves, and without the aid of eminent military skill, deficient in resources, and with a distrustful and changeable people, they have defended the State of Vera Cruz for three months with an ill-equipped national guard against the best soldiers that Mexico could send against them. Should they fall now, it will be through no fault of theirs, and they will at no distant day be called again to lead in the councils of the country.

CITY COUNCIL.

Board of Aldermen.—The Board of Aldermen met at four o'clock this afternoon. Their proceedings were not of a very important character.

Common Council.—The Common Council also met at four o clock.

Mr. Brown presented a petition from Thomas Lewis and ninety-six others, praying the causting of a law prohibiting the erection of brick kilns within the limits of the city, and it was appropriately referred.

Mr. Jefferson, from the committee on police, reported against resolution requesting the mayor to transmit to the Secretary of War the resolutions for a re-organisation of the District militia, which was passed at the meeting of the delegates of the several wards to organize a patrol. After the adoption of several amendments, the resolution was adopted.

Mr. Jefferson, also, from the same committee, reported adversely on the petition of several of the police, requesting that the white stripe on the new uniform be removed; which was recommitted.

Mr. Turton, from the committee on improvements, reported back the bill for grading and gravelling Sixth street west, from Massachusetts avenue to G street north, and along that street to Fifth street west; and it was taken up and passed.

The joint resolutions on the question of ascertaining the sense of the people on the propriety of increasing the funded delet of the city were taken from the presidents.

After a brief consultation, he resolutions were reported back to the board, and they were taken up for men on Wednesday night last, and published in the Union of Thursday.]

Mr. Lloyd moved to amend the second section by striking out the words "For the water" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "For the increase of the debt in order to obtain water;" and also the words "Against the water," and insert the words "Against the increase of the debt in order to obtain the water."
Mr. Lloyd believed the question was not intelligently submitted. The people would vote for the water readily, whilst they would be opposed to the increase of the city debt.

Messrs. Gordon and Clarke approved of the am

Mr. Clarke quoted from the city charter to show that the question of increasing the debt must be submitted to the people. The resolution, without the amendment, submitted the question of water, whilst the increase of debt was left out.

Mr. Brown had every confidence in the intelligence of the people. He believed they would vote understandingly on the question, and that when they voted for the water they knew they were voting to increase the funded debt. In Boston the question was submitted in this way. The same plan was adopted in Baltimore, and the very words of the resolution before them were taken from the acts of these cities.

Mr. Brown did not concur with Mr. Clarke. The amendment would cause the people to vote blindly, should it be adopted.

Mr. Jefferson also had great faith in the people. He believed they would vote intelligently on the question.

After further debate, the question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

After further debate, the question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. Kennedy moved to amend the resolution so that not more than $25,000 should be funded at one and the same time.

Mr. Brown said that no money should be borrowed unless at 6 per cent. The measure ought to be plain and simple, and plain to the comprehension of every one. He hoped the bill would pass just as it stood, without amendment or modification. There was but little enough time left, and the sooner it was passed the better. If it was not all that the people wished it to be it andoubtedly submitted the great question to the people.

Mr. Jefferson would add to what was said by Mr. Brown that the amendment was calculated to do the city an injury. The present proviso was that the money should only be applied to the purposes of water. Did they not perceive that if they borrowed the money of capitalists, these capitalists would be more exorbitant from the fact that the matter was to be continually submitted to the people.

the fact that the matter was to be continually submitted to the people.

Mr. I.boyd epposed the amendment.

Mr. Kennedy did not know who would be the next mayor, but whoever he might be, he would have more respect for himself and for the community in which he lives to do otherwise than right. The object of the amendment was simply to prevent the funding of too large a sum of money at the same time. According to the resolution, the officers who might be in power would have the authority to fund the whole $250,000 at six per cent. and place it in some bank or banks for safe-keeping, and the banks so selected might be using the money for other purposes, and they might be paying their taxes for the purpose of paying the interest on money they did not need.

Mr. Fisher said they only proposed to submit the question to the people, and the amendment struck him as altogether out of place. If they obtained the right of Congress, then they could carry out that purposes.

Mr. Kennedy thought it was unnecessary to go to Congress. After the passage of the resolution they would have the authority they wanted.

Mr. Fisher. Certainly not.
Mr. Brown said the question would be fairly submitted to the people, and he was surprised that they had occupied so much time in the consideration of the bill.

The question was then taken, and the amendment was this city, commencing this morning at ten o'clock.

This association is one of the most numerous and respeciable bodies in the country. Its annual meetings, be present at this meeting, representing the medical pro-fession in every part of the United States, and coming either as delegates from local institutions, as members by invitation, or as permanent members.

Invitation, or as permanent members.

The delegates come accredited from permanently-organized medical societies, medical colleges, hospitals, lunatic asylums, and other permanently-organized medical institutions of good standing in United States. Each local society has the privilege of sending one delegate for every ten of its regular resident members; each medical faculty of a college or chartered school has the privilege of sending tending lege of sending two delegates; the professional staff of each hospital containing a hundred inmates has the privilege of sending two delegates; and every other per-manently-organized medical institution has the privilege of sending one delegate. The army and the navy Medical Bureaux have each the privilege of being represented by four delegates. Only these delegates have the privi-

nd standing, from sections of the United States not to participate in the proceedings.

The permanent members are those who have served in the capacity of delegates, and of such others as may re-eive the appointment by unanimous vote. REGISTRATION.

The officers of the society were in attendance yesterda o receive and register the names of delegates and members. Each gentleman, after registering his name, re-ceived a "hand-book" of the metropolis, neatly bound up for the occasion, with a pocket containing a card of membership, cards of invitation to the various entertain ments, and a programme.

CRIMINAL COURT.—Yesterday morning the case of John Caumaa Court.—Yesterday morning the case of John Essex was again postponed. The eight men charged with a criminal offence against a German woman on the 14th of April last were arraigned, pleaded not guilty, and their trial will commence to-day. Benjamin Ogle, convicted of manslaughter, was then brought to the bar of the court, and sentenced (after having requested that he might pass another week in jail) as follows:

he might pass another week in jail) as follows:

"You have been convicted of a crime inferior only to murder. That John Webb, a youth of some ten or twelve years, lost his life by your hand, naust be a subject of terrible reflection to you while you live. He was a lad of good promise, the only child of a widow, the object of her affections and her future hope. All enjoyment and pleasant anticipation have left her; she is now a lone and miserable woman for such time as God may allot to her in this world; and you are the author of this unhappy change in her condition. You have been equally unjust and cruel to your own wife and children, who will feel the weight of your crime throughout their lives, which cannot but be embittered by their connexion with it through you.

which cannot but be embittered by their connexion with it through you.

"The long confinement which awaits you will furnish time and opportunity for repentance of this and other crimes you may have committed. I hope the opportunity will be advantageously employed, so that, if you live through your term of imprisonment, and return to the world, you may be a better man, with fixed resolutions to pursue a different course of life from that which you have heretofore followed, and to abstain from indulging in drinking ardent spirits, which has, the evidence leaves no doubt, placed you in the position you now occupy.

"The scatence of the court is, that you suffer imprisonment and labor in the penitentiary for the District of Columbia for the period of eight years, to which, in this case, I regret that the law limits the court."

The prisoner was remanded to jail, and later in day was taken to the penitentiary.

BALTIMORE RAILROAD. We are informed that the managers of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Com-pany intend, on Monday next, to make such an alteration in the running of all their trains on both the main stem and the Washington branch as will bring government employees, who prefer rusticating in the duties by nine in the morning, or a little sooner - that is to say, they intend starting an accommodation train from Baltimore at 6.45, a. m., which is expected to reach Washington at 8.30, a. m. At the same time they are disposed to issue season tickets all the way through from Washington to Baltimore, as well as to the intermediate ces, as formerly, and also to issue round-trip tickets fo the night as well as for the day. By these, all who wish to leave Washington in the evening, spend the night in Baltimore, and return the next morning, will hereafte be able to obtain round-trip tickets.

THE CHEMPHARM AND ORIO CANAL IS NOW doing a prof itable business. During the week ending Saturday evening last, ninety-one leads arrived at the Georgetown collection office, of which about sixty were freighted with coal from Cumberland.
